

Overall, the cumulative amount over the academic year should not exceed $500 per child.

When identifying which expenses are reimbursable, the general principle to follow is that expenses that are normally included in traditional private school tuition are reimbursable. Expenses that are usually paid for separately and on top of traditional school tuition are not reimbursable; neither are major resources that are usually shared by many teachers and students, rather than just one or a few. See Table 1 for examples of reimbursable and non- reimbursable expenses.

TABLE: Acceptable/Unacceptable Reimbursable Expenses

| Acceptable | Unacceptable |
|---|---|
| Original/copies of receipts | Hand written receipts |
| Textbooks | Computers |
| Workbooks | Printers |
| Teacher’s Guide | Toner for printer |
| Educational Software (not for entertainment) | Fax Machines |
| Educational Audio/Video tapes | Internet Access fees |
| Teaching Aid Materials (Calculators, globes, science lab supplies, etc) | Hardware (CD drives, memory space, etc) |
| Copies used for Homeschooling purposes (work sheets) | Backpacks |
| Testing fees | Desks |
| Tutoring | Instruments |
| Fees for Homeschooling agencies | Clothing/sneakers |
| Equipment for physical education | Tutoring |
| Reference Materials (dictionary, atlas, etc) | Individual music or sports lessons |
| General group instruction in the arts | School supplies normally paid for by families |
| Tuition for academic courses taken outside the home | Special Ed diagnosis |
| Classes normally offered in traditional schools | HSLDA membership fees |
| | Association fees (support group type) |